Château Maris is located within the re-known terroir of Cru La Liviniere in the South of France. Situated at the foot of the Black Mountains, it is a family vineyard of 45ha producing Syrah, Grenache and Carignan vines.

A pure sulfur-free Syrah! "Savoir Vieillir" (aging wisely) was born of the desire to offer the best that the earth can produce when it is listened to, respected, and worked intelligently. At Maris, it's crystal clear: we work with nature, we follow it as much as we guide it. Nature gives back to us. This relative wisdom consists of taking time. The time to do things well. "Savoir Vieillir" is first of all a nod to Cicero and his treatise on old age, a text from Antiquity, so modern in truth. It is also an antidote to the vanity of urgency and inconsistency of things.

Winemaking

One month of maceration with gentle pumping over and breaking of the cap. In order to capture all the energy of the fruit, this wine is bottled quickly after vinification, with no added sulfites.

Tasting

The color is dark purple. The nose is delicate, fresh, with aromas of lively fruit, redcurrant, cherry, and pomegranate. The mouthfeel is moderately concentrated, creamy and lively at the same time, very charming, with notes of blueberry, violet and pepper. A wine of spontaneous pleasure.
